PECULIAR STATUARY IS FOUND NEAR TOWN

Strange finds are often made in the most unexpected places. This happened to C. Van Braam one day early in the week when he was out with his car gathering wood on the old cut near limits of Robinson & MacKenzie east of town. Chopping into an old stump, when he struck the decayed centre, out fell a piece of statuary that must have been embedded there for half a century or more. It represented an Indian in a kneeling and bowed posture, as if in meditation. It is about 7½ inches in height and is in a fairly good state of preservation, save for the absence of one hand and part of an arm.

The piece of sculpture was evidently formed out of plaster of paris, and it might have been one of a set of book ends. How or when it got into the stump nobody seems to know, and Mr. Van Braam would naturally like some enlightenment in the matter.

The statue is for the present in The Courier office, where it may be seen.—Cranbrook Courier.

Central United Church, Blaimore, will hold its annual Harvest Thanksgiving service on Sunday evening next at 7.30. Special music.

PROCLAMATION

The National Alliance of Slovaks, Czechs and Carpathians in the Crown's Nest Pass, with locals throughout Canada, headed by the former president of Czechoslovakia, Dr. E. Benes, hereby make the following announcement to the people of Canada:

That we, the Czechoslovak people, organized under the National Alliance of Slovaks, Czechs and Carpathians, are in every way loyal citizens to our new country, Canada, and, to the best of our ability donate to, encourage and foster the ideals and liberties we are now privileged to enjoy under His Majesty King George VI. in the Dominion of Canada.

Also, it is our wish that by doing our small part as loyal citizens on Canada, we may thereby help to bring back freedom and democratic rights to the former Czechoslovak Republic.

In fairness to the people of Czechoslovakia, we do wish them to be understood in this war of Germany on Poland. In this crisis the Slovak people, now under German Nazi oppression, are being forced into this conflict by the ruthless iron heel of Germany.

Therefore, we, as loyal citizens of Canadian and British ideals of freedom and democracy, pledge ourselves to the upholding and defending of our freedom and rights of King and Country.

Signed by the following officers of THE NATIONAL ALLIANCE OF SLOVAKS, CZECHS AND CARPATHIANS.

V. J. HOREJSI,
R. RUZICKA,
JOHN DANCO,

No matter how high an officer's rank, his wife will not get more than $60 a month dependents' allowance, this being the amount allowed for all officers above the rank of major. Majors' wives will get $55 a month, captains' wives $50, lieutenants' $45, warrant officers' $40, and all other ranks' $35.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR-MAIL SERVICE IS CURTAILED

Air mail service to Britain from Canada has been seriously curtailed, due to the present war situation, it was reported this week.

Canada, with the inauguration of the trans-oceanic service, had three mail flights to England each week. With the start of hostilities the Pan-American service, via France, was cancelled. It is stated that beginning next month, one of the two remaining flights will be cancelled.

A Worthy Cause

The stirring appeal which has been sounded during the past few months for financial support to ensure continued maintenance of Jack Miner's bird sanctuary in Eastern Canada should strike a responsive chord in the breast of every lover of wild life and of every true sportsman on the entire continent.

When it is remembered that Jack Miner, at great personal sacrifice to himself and family, has done pioneer work in bird banding for a long period of years resulting in valuable information which has made conservation of game birds on present day scale possible, it is not too much to suggest that his work is deserving of recognition in a practical way, at least to the extent that will enable the work to be carried on. It would not be going too far afield to state that every sportsman in the United States and Canada owes him a debt beyond calculation.

The banding of ducks and geese by Jack Miner, and in later years by the Biological Survey of Washington, has revealed that there are three migration routes which the birds follow in their annual flights to and from their breeding grounds. One route lies east of the Mississippi, another west of the Mississippi to the Rocky Mountains and the third is along the Pacific Coast, west of the Rockies.

The ducks and geese banded by Jack Miner at Kingsville, Ontario, which is centrally located along the Great Lakes, are practically all reported shot east of the Mississippi with the exception of the odd bird which has strayed across to the western side of that big river.

It has been Jack Miner's sanctuary and his activities at Kingsville that have saved a breeding supply for hunters and especially those who enjoy their sport in Southern Illinois and the Junction of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers and eastward through to Carriacou Sound, Lake Mattamuskeet and other winter quarters.

Benefited Greatly

The band records compiled by Jack Miner over a long period of years prove that the sportsmen along the Atlantic Coast and in the Eastern United States benefit very little from the activities of the duck or goose population of Western Canada.

The great value of the Jack Miner's bird banding activities is that it has given the people of the United States and Canada indisputable records of the number and percentage of ducks and geese cared for by the famous Canadian bird sanctuary at Kingsville that are shot in the United States.

Jack Miner, as well as many other leading Canadian sportsmen, conservationists and public spirited citizens, feels that the sportsmen of the United States should, without hesitancy support him in a tangible way by raising sufficient funds to enable him to maintain his establishment and carry on his work.

At the present time hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent in Western Canada by Ducks Unlimited, money which is raised in the United States to restore former breeding grounds and establish new ones in Western Canada to raise ducks for the American sportsmen to shoot. If it is possible to raise such large sum among the hunters of the United States for this new project, there should be a few thousand dollars available to assist Jack Miner whose activities have spelled success for nearly half a century.

In the winter of 1938 alone Jack Miner had a floating population of between 25,000 and 50,000 Canada geese for three months in the spring and three months in the fall, that were all fed by him and given a safe haven from the hunter's gun.

Last winter's flock of Canada geese number between 5,000 and 10,000 never entered the United States, remaining at the Kingsville sanctuary all winter. The increase from this flock alone will give the sportsmen in the United States this fall an opportunity to shoot an additional 10,000 to 25,000 geese.

Miner's Fortune Spent

With these facts in mind an appeal to American sportsmen to maintain the Jack Miner sanctuary should not fall on deaf ears.

The result of close contact with Jack Miner and his work over a period of many years, contributors can be assured that any assistance which can be given will not only be gladly accepted but will be expended to the greatest possible advantage. Jack Miner himself has spent his entire personal fortune on this work and has contributed his own time and that of his family to this great cause.

In a recent announcement it was pointed out that cheques should be made payable personally to Jack Miner, Kingsville, Ontario, and it was stated that to those who wish to secure a statement of actual financial conditions before large amounts are contributed, a sworn statement of the bank handling the account at Kingsville will be mailed.

No More Blackboards

Days of the schoolroom blackboard in Sudbury, Ont., may be numbered. When school opened pupils could write on yellow glass with purple chalk in the King George public school, most recent addition to Sudbury's school buildings. Blackboards are said to absorb too much light, and all boards will be changed if the experiment proves successful.

Quality Is Impaired

Story From Switzerland Confirms Report About German War Weapons

Switzerland produces most of her own guns, and it is reported that her anti-tank infantry gun is one of the most effective pieces of defensive machinery yet produced. Swiss papers reported an amusing incident recently which seems to confirm the report that Germany's dearth of raw material has seriously impaired the quality of her manufactures.

Not long ago, so goes the tale, the Swiss Army wished to place an order for a number of German tanks and several tanks were brought to Switzerland for demonstration. The German tank crews were so sure of their wares that they offered to remain in their machines during the trials, but the Swiss officers refused. When the tests were over the tanks were literally torn apart, to the relief of the German officers who had so narrowly escaped with their lives.—New York Post.

Improve Farm Land

105 Million Acres In West To Benefit By Rehabilitation Work

The area coming under the provisions of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act covers approximately 105 million acres of land in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Within this area there are approximately 47,000,000 acres of improved farm land, representing about 85 per cent. of the total improved acreage of farm land in Canada. In addition the area constitutes the most important single agricultural district in the Dominion and one of the major regions of the world for the production of wheat and other cereal crops.

Not So Very Good

Story About Herr Goebbels And Schoolboy Worth Repeating

Goebbels was paying a visit to a public school in order to see how his propaganda was affecting the youth of the country. He asked a small boy to quote from memory some patriotic greeting. The child replied: "Heil Hitler." "Quite right," said Herr Goebbels, "but there are other slogans. A second boy piped up: "Deutschland über Alles." "Fine, fine," said Goebbels, "but there are even more impressive ones." Whereupon the smallest boy in the class contributed: "Our people shall go on for ever." "Bravo," said Goebbels, "that's very good indeed! What's your name?" And the boy answered: "Isaac Levy."—Nebelspalter, Rorschach.

Are Rigidly Protected

No Koala Bear Skins Are Being Exported From Australia

The Australian Press Union says publicly given in the United States to Australia's lovable native bear, the koala, caused a demand for coats made from their skins and this led to reports that koalas were being illegally killed here and their skins exported.

The Chief Secretary (Mr. Bailey) caused inquiries to be made and these revealed that the skins being used were exported in 1927 when, during an open season in Queensland, 600,000 were obtained by trappers. Since then the koala has been rigidly protected.

Canada welcomes the newcomers and particularly when they are like an Austrian baron, who fought for Germany in the Great War, but, arriving in Canada to take up farming says "I will fight for the English people in this war, if it comes. I will fight for Great Britain because I know I will be fighting on the side which stands for the rights of people; I shall be on the right side." ## Import Timothy Seed

Timothy seed to the amount of 3,658,022 pounds figures as the highest importation of field seeds into Canada during the 12 months, July 1, 1938 to July 1, 1939. ## Fare Of The Japanese

Inhabitants Said To Substain Largely On Fish And Vegetables

Most Japanese live largely upon vegetables and fish. Such a diet is necessary not merely because of the difference in customs but because of the natural circumstances in which they are placed, as the land fit for the cultivation of foodstuffs is limited.

The seas around Japan are, so to speak, the pastures of the Japanese people. More than a thousand species of fish are found in Japanese waters.

The Japanese consume as food one-fourth of the total consumption of fish in the world, and to them it is the healthiest of all foods. So long as there are good supplies of fish and rice available, the life of the Japanese is well assured.—East Asia Economic News.

Really Got Away

Ross McLaren, of Havelock, Ont., is talking about the big one that got away and he is one fisherman who can speak with authority because he weighed the bass and it tipped the scales at seven pounds. At he weighed it, a woman spectator asked to lift it. She did. It slipped from her hand to the dock and then into the water.

Carrier pigeons in recent races in England flew 40 miles an hour.

FRENCH FORCES MAKE ADVANCES ON WEST FRONT

Paris.—A French communiqué said that Germany is moving up reinforcements to the western front where French troops were reported feeling their way forward along the fringes of the Saar basin "no man's land."

The report said they are moving forward against flanking fire from advance lines guarding the shallow valleys leading to the main Siegfried line fortification of the Reich.

The French general staff communiqué No. 8 said:

"On the front between the Rhine and the Moselle the enemy is being reinforced in front of us. Observers report the arrival of new forces coming from the interior of Germany."

The French were said to have carried the fighting into German territory in an effort to divert German troops from the eastern (Polish) front, where reports reaching Paris said, Nazi advances have been as deep as 60 and 70 miles at some points.

Military observers in Paris said the heaviest Franco-German fighting apparently is between the small French city of Bitche, near France's frontier with Germany, and the Moselle river to the north. Bitche nestles at the base of a fortified hill.

A French force was said to have fought its way into the German forest of Biewald, just north of Lauterbourg. Although the reported advance was slight and has not been specifically mentioned in the communiqué, observers here regarded it as a sign the fighting is spreading.

The wooded Biewald forest spreads between the Lauter river and the Siegfried line to a depth of five or six miles.

The French advance into Germany is believed to have swung out on an irregular curve bulging out near Luxembourg and flattening back near Bitche.

This whole area, on the German side, is fortified only by light trenches, temporary positions in advance of the Siegfried line. North of Karlsruhe, the German main line of fortifications lies several miles behind the frontier.

Indications from the terse French military communiqués were that as soon as large raiding parties had consolidated their positions on the French side of the frontier, the move was given for an advance on similar positions across the boundary.

Announcement of the arrival of British forces in France and of conferences between Major-General Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the British Imperial general staff, and General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander of all French forces, were regarded generally as meaning British Tommies are being moved to the frontier.

Gamelin, slated to be commander-in-chief of the combined British and French land forces, is assumed to have consulted on plans for joint action.

The "No Man's Land" between the Siegfried and French Maginot lines is considerably narrower there and the German advance lines are more strongly entrenched.

An artillery duel was said to be continuing from Lauterbourg south with the French bombarding German strongholds guarding the southern route across Germany.

Keeping Close Watch

Turkey Would Act If Italy Joins Germany In War

Istanbul.—Competent circles said Turkey, faithful to its alliance with Great Britain and France, would maintain an "attitude of expectation" with a close watch on Italy.

It was emphasized that Turkey would move immediately should Italy show signs of joining Germany in the European war. Parliament has been called for the normal date.

The Turkish-German trade agreement, which expired Aug. 31, is not being renewed or prolonged, it was said, because Germany failed to deliver military supplies as payment for Turkish goods.

Would Buy Plane

High River, Alta.—Plans to launch a province-wide drive for $25,000 to purchase a military aeroplane for use of the Dominion government are underway by the High River branch of the Canadian Legion.

People Are Uneasy

Paris.—Officials of the French embassy in Berlin said on their arrival in Paris there were signs of acute nervousness and uneasiness among civilians in the German capital shortly before they left Berlin.

Preparing For Defence

Governor-General's Warrants To Cover Large Expenditures

Ottawa.—Use of governor-general's warrants to cover expenditures of $10,450,000 involved in preparations for defence of Canada and war time emergency measures was reported in 36 orders-in-council tabled by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the House of Commons.

Other orders had to do with internment of enemy aliens, appointment of the commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as registrar general for enemy aliens, and the numerous steps of an emergency character associated with calling up defence forces which already have been announced.

Following is a detail of the expenditures under governor-general's warrants:

$8,916,000 for air raid precautions;

$536,000 to cover cost of transporting air force units to the east coast and 30 days' training of the auxiliary air force;

$5,345,590 to bring the permanent active air force to full peace establishment;

$50,000 to cover employment of civilian personnel for emergency duty.

Appropriation of $150,000 covers preliminary steps in taking necessary emergency precautions to guard against air raids in the centres in Canada considered most vulnerable at the moment.

Air raid precautions have been designated as a responsibility of the department of pensions and national health.

For the purchase of 6,000 units of suitable clothing for emergency working parties, $72,000 is included. For 6,000 civilian duty respirators, $12,000 is provided; for the printing and distribution of literature on air raid precautions, the estimate is $20,000. Provisions for other expenses is made as follows:

Grants to the St. John's Ambulance Association for training instructors in first aid and air raid precautions, $5,000.

Motion picture taking films for instructing such courses, $1,000.

For the purchase of fire protection apparatus, $20,000.

Air Line Plane Grounded

Has Freak Collision With A Flock Of Sea Gulls

Calgary.—A large twin-motored Trans-Canada Airlines passenger plane was grounded at Calgary as a precautionary measure, a few minutes after several hundred sea gulls crashed into it, T.C.A. men revealed. The freak collision occurred as the ship flashed down the runway. Bodies of sea gulls, torn and battered, plummeted to the ground as they contacted the giant three-bladed propellers. An estimated 136 birds were killed.

The pilot, however, took the plane up, circled the airport, and then landed. A spare machine from Lethbridge arrived later and transported the passengers to Edmonton.

Veteran Pilots Would Enlist

Edmonton.—Over 70 veteran pilots of the Great War have offered their services to Canada, it was announced by Captain James Bell, manager of the Edmonton airport. Members of the Edmonton War Pilot's Association made the offer in a telegram to Defence Minister Mackenzie at Ottawa.

Japs Want Free Hand

Shanghai.—The Japanese navy requested British and French naval authorities to withdraw their forces from China to "remove the danger of incidents" as the result of the European war. The British and French commanders referred the Japanese request to their home governments.

Smuts Forms Cabinet

Union Of South Africa Declares War On Germany

London.—The ministry of information announced that the Union of South Africa had declared a state of war with Germany.

Measures were immediately taken to effect recall of the South African and German diplomatic representatives from the respective capitals, the communiqué said.

The proclamation was issued by Prime Minister Jan Smuts, who formed a cabinet after the downfall of Premier J. B. M. Hertzog. General Hertzog unsuccessfully attempted to keep the dominion neutral, but was voted down in the house of assembly when General Smuts appealed for rupture of relations with Germany.

General Smuts, in forming his ministry, retained the portfolios of external affairs and national defence.

NO INCREASE IN SUGAR PRICES TO BE PERMITTED

Ottawa.—The wartime prices and trade board, after an emergency conference with representative sugar refiners, issued a warning that any "attempts at restrictions or accumulation of supplies, or an enhancement of prices will be met with prompt action."

"There is ample sugar for all usual requirements," a statement from the board said. "Consumers are urged to buy normally, and to proceed as usual with their seasonal canning operations."

Sugar was the first specific commodity to be considered by the board, of which Hector B. McKinnon, commissioner of tariffs, is chairman.

The board acted after published reports of sugar shortages in various centres and of price increases by some retailers.

The formal statement from the board said the retailers "confirm there has been no increase in their selling price, and the present price is the same as that prevailing at the end of April, 1939. They have no intention of raising prices unless and until the cost of raw sugar compels such an increase. The action of a few retailers who are reported to have raised their prices appears to be wholly unjustified."

Refiners told the board, according to the press statement, that since Aug. 1 they have distributed 30 per cent more sugar than in the corresponding 1938 period. This policy is to be continued, and it is anticipated that nearly 50,000,000 pounds of sugar, over and above the normal August and September requirements, will be available to the consumer.

The board's statement directed attention of housewives and others to the "fact that sudden abnormal demand can only cause chaos. If temporary confusion, there is ample sugar for all usual requirements. Consumers are urged to buy normally, and to proceed as usual with their seasonal canning operations."

Elevated To Peerage

Sir Thomas Inskip Has Been Honored By King George

London.—The King elevated Sir Thomas Inskip to the peerage following his appointment as lord chancellor—a post that makes him speaker of the house of lords and head of the English judicial system.

Sir Thomas took the title of Viscount Caldecote of Bristol. His new post is within the cabinet but outside the war cabinet of nine members which Prime Minister Chamberlain has set up.

His elevation to the peerage leaves vacant the House of Commons seat for Fareham, Hampshire. He is a Conservative, aged 63.

POLAND FIGHTS FOR HER EXISTENCE ONCE MORE

Poland to-day is the sixth ranking power in Europe in population and area, but it is one of the poorest in possessions. For 1,000 years Poland had played a strenuous and a country of its own, and every time the Germans and Russia joined together Poland has been destroyed. In 1667, Poland was a great nation, stretching from the Baltic Sea to Crimea, the Corridor and Silesia, Latvia, the Ukraine and a large slice of present Russia. By 1772, Germany and Russia divided Poland, giving a share to Austria. One-fourth the territory of the nation was taken. The next year they took two-thirds of what was left. Despite this, the Polish nation survived until 1796. Then Russia and Germany took the rest. Poland was re-established after the World War.

WILHELM KEITEL

Is one of the six Germans named by Adolf Hitler to a ministerial council to act during the present war. General Keitel will occupy the position of chief of the armed forces.

Bombing Insurance

Rates Are Offered For The Maritimes And Quebec

Ottawa.—Insurance agents are quoting a rate of 75 cents per $100 for "bombardment insurance" in the maritime provinces and Quebec on advice from Lloyds of London, it was learned. The insurance covers risk of damage to buildings and other property from war hazards, such as shelling, bombing from the air and sabotage.

So far as could be learned no rate has been established for districts in Canada further west than the province of Quebec.

At the same time local agents were advised that the rate prevailing under war conditions for marine insurance between Canadian and United Kingdom ports, Dunkirk, Gibraltar and ports in Norway, north of Bergen, via the northern route, is five per cent. ($5 per $100 of insurance).

The highest rate quoted, 7½ per cent, prevails on shipments to and from other parts of the Continent of Europe to ports on the Mediterranean, Black and Marmara seas and to the East and Far East by way of the Mediterranean.

A rate of one per cent, is quoted on shipments to Australia, the East and Far East by way of the Panama canal and across the Pacific.

North American coastwise shipments and shipments to central America and the West Indies are insurable at one-half of one per cent, and a rate of one quarter of one per cent, applies to shipments from North America to Newfoundland.

Army Medical Corps

Sir Frederick Banting, Co-Discoverer Of Insulin, Enlists As Captain

Toronto.—Sir Frederick Banting, professor of medical research in the University of Toronto and co-discoverer of insulin, has enlisted as captain in the 15th General Hospital, Canadian Army Medical Corps, it was learned.

Sir Frederick enlisted as a private in the field ambulance during the Great War and rose to a lieutenant in the Canadian Army Medical Corps. He was wounded at Cambrai, where he won the Military Cross.

Operating As Usual

Ottawa.—Trans-Canada air lines will continue to operate its mail and passenger service from Montreal to Vancouver despite the war crisis, it was learned at the transport department. A spokesman said there will be no interruption of the airlines and no other use is being planned for the planes or pilots.

Penalty Is Heavy

Berlin.—It was announced in Berlin that accidental or purposeful violation of a ministry of interior decree banning dancing in Germany will be punished by six weeks in prison and a fine of 150 marks.

Work On Planes

United States Aircraft Factories To Complete Orders For Britain And France

New York.—United States aircraft factories continued work on 600 planes ordered by France, England and Australia. Aircraft circles said no stoppage was indicated in work on between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000 of foreign orders for planes and parts, because of invocation of the Neutrality Act.

It was said that although shipments of the finished planes abroad is cancelled by the neutrality laws, plane makers are protected. Their contracts with France, Britain and Australia specify that in event the laws hold up shipment abroad, delivery of the finished planes can be made in the United States. In this way, payment to the aircraft companies for the planes will be made in the same manner as if shipment abroad could be continued.

Interned In Britain

A Total Of 500 Have Been Held Since Start Of War

London.—The Daily Mail said four members of an organization known as "The Link" are among 120 foreign residents of Britain interned in the London district.

"The Link," denounced recently as "an instrument of the German propaganda service" by Sir Samuel Hoare, the home secretary, was ostensibly an organization to promote Anglo-German friendship.

The Daily Mail said a total of 500 persons have been interned throughout Great Britain since the beginning of the war.

BRITAIN STARTS A BLOCKADE OF GERMAN PORTS

London.—Great Britain's anti-aircraft defences beat back Germany's first air raid on this country while the government unified all sections of the army and prepared to bring Britain's vast economic strength into the fight against Fuehrer Hitler.

An undetermined number of German planes appeared off the east coast of England and millions of Britons were routed out of bed by the banshee wails of air raid sirens. The "all clear" signal sounded two hours later.

It was stated officially the enemy squadron approached the coast while on a reconnaissance flight but they turned for home before land and they were reached.

Fast squadrons of Royal Air Force fighter planes pursued them but could not catch them.

According to the press association, "on returning home some of our aircraft were mistaken for enemy aircraft which caused certain batteries to open fire. This accounted for rumors of a heavy aerial engagement."

The ministry of information said that as far as is known the enemy raiders "did not penetrate our defences at any point and no damage has been reported."

Meanwhile Britain and France arranged to advance $34,000,000 in cash to Poland to enable their eastern ally to stand up financially to Germany's drive toward Warsaw. This was in addition to credits previously advanced to the Polish treasury.

The admiralty threw off all legal restrictions on the size of Britain's fleet when it announced that "in consequence of the state of war which exists with Germany" obligations under the 1936 London naval treaty have been indefinitely suspended.

The treaty imposed qualitative restrictions on the fleet, limiting the size of warships and the calibre of guns but not the number of ships. It was signed by the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, United States and France.

As a result of its suspension, Britain now could build any size warships and install any size gun.

The government declared the ministry of economic warfare headed by Ronald Ross will exercise similar functions to those of the ministry of blockade established late in the last war and was a vital factor in Germany's economic collapse and defeat.

The board is prohibited export of about 500 articles including coal, many metals, drugs and food.

A communiqué said the new ministry would have as its aim the disorganization of "the economy of the enemy as far as possible and thus effectively paralyzing on the war."

The government started a blockade of Germany the minute war was declared. It was announced all ships bound for Germany or carrying contraband would be stopped.

WESTERN CROP EXPECTED TO BE LARGEST SINCE '28

Winnipeg.—Western Canada's 1939 wheat crop is estimated at 451,672,170 bushels in the final crop report of the Winnipeg Free Press. The yield, if it is realized, will budge western bins with the greatest harvest since 1928 when 666,000 bushels were taken from prairie farms.

Despite the torrid temperatures of July, which brought belief the wheat would not fill, the report added, sufficient threshing has been completed to show that damage in most districts was not nearly as severe as had been feared.

In Manitoba, where a yield of 18.6 bushels to the acre is a large acreage, a total of more than 59,000,000 bushels is forecast. The expected yield would give the province its highest total since the disastrous rust epidemic of 1916 caused farmers to turn to other crops than wheat.

A few points on the southern and western borders report poor yields but in other parts of Manitoba good returns are indicated.

With an average yield of 16.5 bushels to the acre, a large proportion of Saskatchewan is expected to harvest 238,000,000 bushels of wheat. It is anticipated, however, that yields will vary widely even within single districts, a small moisture reserve making a difference between success and failure.

The report says Alberta producers, their fields averaging 18.3 bushels an acre, are harvesting a slightly heavier crop than in 1938. It is estimated the yield will reach 154,000,000 bushels.

Yields are lowest on the eastern border but only three points report less than 10 bushels to the acre, indicating a well distributed return.

The grade of western Canada's new wheat is "surprisingly good in view of growing conditions and broken harvesting weather."

"Most of the wheat threshed in Manitoba is falling within the three top Northern grades. A large proportion of Saskatchewan wheat is expected to grade from one to four northern with one and two northern predominating. Early threshing returns in Alberta also indicate that the new crop will be of high quality."

Leakage Of News

Charge That German Minister To Elre Conveys Information To

Belfast.—Thomas Gibson Henderson asserted in the House of Commons that defence information from a number of sources was being conveyed to the German minister to Elre at Dublin and transmitted to Germany. He said:

"I took cognizance of that fact and immediately communicated with authorities at Westminster (London) to put a halt to it as early as possible."

Henderson, a member of the house from Belfast, said that statements made in commons and in the Belfast corporation on air raid protection would remove that man immediately to the German minister and by him to Germany almost immediately.

"I don't think the minister should remain there," he said. "If the south of Ireland were in the Empire they would remove that man immediately from Dublin."

"Let the Empire see that they are with us. While they have a German minister at Dublin anything that might be said will be conveyed to Germany."

Comrade Of Hitler

Enlists For Active Service With Canada's Defence Forces

Drumheller, Alta.—Paul Gorties, a Sudbury, German, who 22 years ago was an Austrian army officer and comrade of Corporal Adolf Hitler, now German chancellor, has enlisted for active service with Canada's defence forces.

Gorties, who claims he often barked orders to the present head of Germany during the Great War, is now a naturalized Canadian in this mining centre 85 miles northeast of Calgary.

Gorties signed attestation papers at the recruiting office here and said he would be happy to oppose Fuehrer Hitler's forces.

PETITION WEALTH

CONSCRIPTION

At a recent caucus of Social Credit members of the provincial and federal houses, held in Edmonton, the following resolutions were passed:

"Owing to the very serious situation in the world which has culminated in war, the federal Social Credit caucus, in conjunction with the Provincial Cabinet, resolve that Canada, in co-operation with the other members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, should effectively support Britain and her allies in the present conflict."

"That we believe that Canada should finance its share in this war, not by the creation of huge debts, but in the following manner:

"(a) By the creation by the Government of the necessary credit and currency, combined with definite price regulations, to prevent any serious inflationary rise in prices;

"(b) By borrowing abroad only for the purpose of obtaining needed goods and services beyond the capacity of our people to furnish."

"We strongly support the just demands of our people for the greatest possible equalization of services by:

"(a) Placing an embargo on capital and capital assets as at the date of declaration of war;

"(b) Requiring that financial institutions and corporations reveal all undisclosed reserves at the declaration of war, and that these be forthwith conscripted by the Dominion government;

"(c) Introducing a more steeply graded income and profit tax."

"And that these three measures above be used to provide adequate present and future incomes for all persons on active service and for their families and dependents."

"This shall be entirely in addition to the provision made in resolution 2 above, i.e., it shall be in excess of the regular pay and allowances of the Military Service Act."

"Furthermore, that all equivocation or evasion in this regard shall be treated as a treasonable offence."

The final resolution was linked to the foregoing and was adopted as follows:

"We hereby resolve that conscription of material and natural resources for the purpose of securing the greatest possible equalization of sacrifice as outlined above shall be introduced before the conscription of individual man power."

Two men, Joe Stafford, electrician, and James Main, machineman, were killed in an accident at Hy-Grade mine in the Drumheller district on Wednesday afternoon. Joe Stafford was a former Blairmore school boy, and formerly was employed at Coleman and Blairmore, Mrs. Albert Olson, of Blairmore, and Mrs. John Ridd, of Calgary, are sisters.

Another repercussion of the state of war is that all amateur radio equipment must be dismantled. This means that all sets must be completely unwired and kept so for the duration of war. Then, if the war should last for two or three years, this equipment will be obsolete. It is a hobby that has provided untold pleasure, and for those in the sick room who can operate it has been a source of incalculable relief.—Ex.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windrows)

Edmonton, Sept. 11.—The contribution that Alberta can and will make in Canada's part in the new Great War, on behalf of Great Britain and the Empire, was being studied closely this week in Edmonton and Ottawa.

The announcement of Canada's official declaration of war against Germany on Sunday put this province right into the war for its duration, and Britain is planning on a duration of at least three years; if that time is necessary to blot out Hitler, the one madman who has thrown the world into turmoil.

Hitler's own statement, made in his own newspaper at Munich last week, that the empire is the price that Britain must pay for opposing him, gave this province a very personal interest in helping to crush Hitlerism—the defence of Alberta itself as a free and democratic land.

Announcement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the house of commons that there will be no conscription of man power in Canada as long as his present administration lasts came as something of a surprise and even a disappointment, but it was understood generally that the Dominion government has been informed by the Imperial government at London just what help it requires from Canada, and that large forces of troops are not included among those requirements, for the present at least. Canada's chief contributions are to be economic, through supply of war materials and foodstuffs, and a force of air men which may number 25,000, to be trained and equipped in Canada.

Home defence also will be a part of Canada's war duty, with millions of square miles and many thousand miles of coastline to protect.

Despite the lack of conscription, many hundreds of Alberta men enlisted in the army units of the new Canadian Active Service force being mobilized for duty at home or abroad. By the end of the first week, enlistments in these units were approaching 2,000 men, and outside points had hardly been tapped. Requirements for recruits were strict, and many hundreds of applicants were refused admission to the army. It is expected that mobilization of the first force being raised in Alberta will be completed in the next ten days.

The Social Credit party's view on participation in the war had been awaited with interest for various reasons, among them being the fact that a party convention at Quebec in June had adopted, without protest from Hon. Lucien Maynard, who was there to represent Premier William Aberhart, a resolution pledging this group against participation in any way "within or without" Canada and opposing the manufacture of arms and munitions for the Dominion, or any other country. It was wondered, too, whether the Alberta government would continue its policy of opposition to the federal government or offer its support and co-operation, as did Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

Premier Aberhart answered by calling for effective support of Britain in the emergency, and agreeing to the principle that all partisan bias between groups should be dropped.

He also issued a statement, which he said was a summary of the position taken by federal Social Credit members and the provincial cabinet, suggesting war financing by the Dominion (in exactly the way it is done, anyway) and calling for an embargo on capital, with conscription of "undisclosed" reserves of institutions. The premier insisted that Edmonton newspapers print every word of this long statement. When the house of commons met in Ottawa, Social Credit Leader John Blagden pledged the group's unwavering support to the federal government in actions for the best interests of the Empire, and called for control or conscription of finance and industry as well as man power.

The C.C.F. group declared that Canada's participation in war should be limited to economic assistance, with no conscription of man power. In taking that position, the C. C. F. split from its national leader, J. S. Woods, who, explaining that he was speaking for himself alone, opposed any Canadian participation in the war, in any way.

Other developments arising out of the war included plans by the federal government for price control, prevention of profiteering, and control of any phase of economic life which may need control.

All other political groups retired from the West Calgary federal bye-election which must be held Sept. 25th to fill Hon. R. B. Bennett's vacant seat, giving Col. D. G. L. Cunningham, Conservative, a clear field in the national interest.

The provincial government, municipal governments, many school boards, provincial school teachers' pensions commission, and many private firms made plans to protect the jobs and seniority for pensions of men and women who join Canada's fighting forces.

And Canada harvested 450,000,000 bushels of wheat, fourth largest crop on record, in addition to 375,000,000 bushels of oats and 100,000,000 bushels of barley.

THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

Edmonton, Sept. 11.—Alberta made goods provided one of the most popular attractions at Edson Agricultural Fair, reports Floyd M. Baker, M.L.A., who with the local representative, J. H. Unwin, arranged the display: "A full truckload of goods and samples, ranging from veterinary remedies to foundry casting, was driven from Edmonton to Edson. Over twenty Alberta employers of local labor contributed to the display, which was so successful that arrangements are being made to show similar exhibits at all Class B fairs next summer."

An experiment recently carried out by Mr. Baker in the interests of Alberta manufacture is worth recounting here. He produced two pairs of work shoes, one of Alberta make and the other all outside make. Each pair was similar in appearance and price. Through the courtesy of provincial jail officials the shoes were worn by prisoners doing identical work for an identical period. At the end of the test, the Alberta-made shoes were in splendid shape—just nicely broken in—and the other shoes were badly in need of repair.

Alberta moved to stop profiteering Thursday, when Premier Aberhart, referring to what he termed unjustified rises in flour prices, said that it may be necessary to set up a Price Spreads Board under the Trade and Industry Act to prevent exploitation of citizens in the purchase of staple commodities. Co-operation with Ottawa authorities was also offered in this regard, in a written communication to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Khaki is beginning to appear on Edmonton streets. The war spirit, however, is absent. There is not the old air of martial things that characterized the Canadian scene in the years of the last great war. This time it seems to be a straight job of work that calls Alberta's boys to the colors. They want to get the job done quickly.

Prominent among members of the Alberta Civil Service, who have been called for service, is Lt. Col. W. G. Stillman and Major H. P. Rocks. Major Rocks is well known in Alberta labor circles, his work as Industrial Standards officer having brought him into close contact with thousands of workers in all parts of the province. Alberta's nursing staff has registered one hundred per cent.

Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, a veteran of the last war, also volunteered to join the forces. His application for active service, however, was turned down.

The highway hard-surfacing job is proceeding rapidly and as we go to press the primal coat of oil has been laid between Frank and West Blairmore. Traffic is being diverted to State Street via Fifth Avenue. It is hoped to have the first gravel coat applied by tomorrow evening.

CANADA IS AT WAR

Canada officially entered the war against Nazi Germany on Sunday, when the government gave effect to the almost unanimous will of parliament.

For the first time in history, the senior dominion of the British Commonwealth of Nations, on its own account and by its own will, exercised the prerogative of nationhood by declaring a state of war. In 1914, the government merely published the British war proclamation.

Parliament expressed its will late Saturday night at a special war session by adopting the address in reply to the speech from the throne, traditional method of giving approval to general government policies.

Just thirteen hours after the house of commons had signified its approval of the government's proposal to throw Canadian men and resources into war, for the second time in 25 years, a royal proclamation was issued, by Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general, on authority of King George VI., announcing a state of war with Germany existing as and from Sunday.

His Majesty the King received Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner, in audience Sunday, and shortly afterwards issued a proclamation that "on the advice of His Majesty's Privy Council in Canada, the Dominion is at war with Germany."

The proclamation of Canada's entry came as great Britain had renewed its pledge to fight until Hitlerism no longer threatens Europe.

TAXES TEA AND COFFEE

Canada's war time budget was passed by the House of Commons at Ottawa on Tuesday, as presented by Hon. J. L. Halsey, acting minister of finance. There were only minor criticisms on the method offered, none on the necessity. The new taxes include the following:

An excess profits tax of 50% on profits in excess of the average of the past four years, to apply on profits for the financial year beginning March 31st, 1940.

Individual income taxes increased by a surtax of 20%, beginning with 1939 incomes.

Corporation income taxes raised from 15% to 18%.

Excise duty on spirits increased from $5 to $8 per gallon. Duty on wines doubled.

Excise duty on cigarettes raised from $4 to $5 per 1000. Tobacco duty increased 5 cents a pound.

Duty on tea increased from 5 to 10 cents a pound, depending on price. Duty on coffee raised 10 cents a pound.

There is no increase in the rate of sales tax, which remains at 8%, but salted and smoked meats, canned fish, gas and electricity for domestic use are now to be taxed.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Two groups of English school girls visiting Canada will make their homes in Toronto for the duration of the war.

Sixteen English schoolboys, in Canada for a cricket tour, will remain in Toronto until conditions are safe for their return home.

The German public has been informed that listening to foreign radio broadcasts was a crime punishable by a term in the penitentiary.

Hearing that the Duchess of Kent, consort of Australia's governor-general designate, is a speedway fan, the Auto Cycle Council has offered her the freedom of Australian tracks.

The four Chinese terrorist suspects who became the immediate occasion for the Japanese blockade of the Tientsin British concession this summer were handed over to authorities of the Japanese-controlled municipality of Tientsin.

All amateur radio stations in Canada will be "closed down" for the present time" due to war conditions, officials of the radio division of the transport department said. Some 3,500 operators of amateur stations will be affected, it was stated.

The Minister of Labor assumed control of all employment in Great Britain for duration of the war. After a date to be specified employers may not engage or rehire employees without the ministry's approval.

Joke On The Firemen

Detroit Squad Found Fire Not So Easy To Start

The Highland Park fire department at Detroit agrees to a man that it is much easier to put out a fire than to start one—and not nearly so embarrassing.

Recently the fire department turned out almost en masse to demonstrate how quickly it could extinguish 1,000 gallons of blazing oil. Firemen were eager to show a large crowd that their work was even more efficient than that of the police, who had just finished capturing a "bandit" (one of their own members) in short order.

A firebrand was tossed into the pit of oil. A flame flickered momentarily but died out as the firemen, poised with hoses, prepared for action. Another firebrand was tossed on the oil, and still another, but the oil remained unlighted. Then the chief poured gasoline on the oil, but still no fire.

Not to be outdone entirely, the firemen decided to show off their pumping equipment. The engine was rolled into place and the hose turned on. The result was a shower for the cheering spectators.

Could Not Write

It has been stated many times in recent weeks that King John "signed" the Magna Carta. It's hardly correct. He didn't sign it because he could not write. He merely placed his seal on it—and he wasn't certain of what it contained, because he couldn't read.

Not Very Speedy

Without Mechanical Aid Man Is Something of a Slowpoke

Six miles a minute! Why, almost no time ago "a mile a minute" was the speed limit of human comprehension. Lickety-bridle, lickety-cut, lickety split and a mile a minute were all the same. Sixty miles an hour still is a dangerous speed and even highway speed laws, yet the quiet British business man John Cobb has driven an automobile 370.75 miles an hour on the first of two beautiful, whistling runs along the black line of a 15-mile straightaway at the Bonneville Salt Flats, in blistering Utah. This was just four days after his countryman Sir Malcolm Campbell drove a motorboat 142.85 m.p.h. at Coniston, England. Maybe the Red Queen was right: "Nearly there! Why, we passed it ten minutes ago!"

Aside from congratulations from Mr. Cobb and Mr. Campbell, the record runs of the Hamilton Red Lion and Bluebird II, (what a genius the British have for names!) and the record bringing human beings nearer the speed of their lesser evolutionary fellows who go under their own power at speeds man has not yet approached. The deer botfly, for instance, has been clocked in excess of 800 m.p.h. a velocity higher than the velocity of sound. Chimney swifts have been repeatedly timed at about 200 m.p.h. and as migrant birds, swifts have been observed to cover 1,500 miles in about seven hours. Airplanes can do this or better, of course but no automobile or other land conveyance has been devised capable of keeping up such a rate of speed for such a time.

Ab Jenkins drove (again at the Bonneville Salt Flats) an incredible 2,000 miles at 184 m.p.h. An airplane dived 575 m.p.h. in a free dive last January at Buffalo; an Italian named Agello flew 440 m.p.h. over a three-kilometer course in level flight five years ago. But Cunningham ran a mile in close to four minutes and Jesse Owens sprinted only 100 yards in a bit more than nine seconds. By himself the human being is pretty much a slowpoke.—New York Herald Tribune.

Tonga Islands

Saskatoon Resident Gets A Letter By Tin Can Mail

R. H. Trickey of Saskatoon, has received an interesting stamp cover from the Tonga Islands celebrating the 20th anniversary of the accession of Queen Charlotte.

It came via "tin can mail" from Niuefou Islands and bears a 2½¢ postage stamp with a picture of Queen Charlotte beside her throne.

Mail from the island is placed in a can, sealed with solder and taken by natives to a canoe to the steamer which waits a mile from shore. Then it goes to New Zealand by boat and to England by airplane of Canada by steamship.

Reverse side of the cover is stamped "via tin can mail" in four languages other than English.

Too Much Idle Money

Iowa Bank Closed Doors Although It Is Solvent

Because no one wants to borrow money, the savings bank at Booneville, Iowa, has closed its doors. The bank has $267,000 in deposits, is solvent, but it can't make any money paying out 2½ per cent. interest to depositors and letting the cash lie idle in its vaults.

In a letter to the depositors announcing the closing, the bank, in business for 33 years, said "the principal reason for quitting is that we do not know what to do with your money."

Assumes Responsibility

Roderick Stuart Kennedy, B.S.A.

The announcement that Roderick Stuart Kennedy, B.S.A., has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Family Herald and Weekly Star gains importance from the internal and external stresses to which Canada is subject, and which are often felt most acutely in the farming and rural sections. The Editor of the only completely national farm magazine in the Dominion has unique responsibility as a reconciler of sectional interests, an interpreter of diverse aspirations, and an influence towards Canadian unity.

Mr. Kennedy who was born in Montreal, schooled in England, worked on farms in Eastern and Western Canada and who has travelled widely throughout the rural parts of Canada, should have that broad vision of Canada as a nation, and as a member of the British Commonwealth which these difficult times demand.

Following his graduation in Agriculture from Macdonald College, (McGill) in 1912, Mr. Kennedy was a member of the Lacombe Experimental Farm, following which he joined his father in the management of a section near the same town. In 1914 he joined the C.E.F., and after his discharge on account of wounds was in charge of Vocational Training of Disabled Soldiers in the Ottawa District until he joined the Family Herald and Weekly Star as Promotion Manager in 1922.

It is in his blood, his father having been editor of the London Times Edition, and before that City Editor of the old Montreal Witness and War Correspondent during the Riel Rebellion. His own articles, stories and book reviews have appeared in many Canadian and United States publications in recent years, and he has, appropriately enough, been for a long time an active member of both the Canadian Society of Agriculturalists and the Canadian Authors' Association.

Wrote Beautiful Story

Blind Girl Won First Prize In Nation-Wide Contest

Eighteen-year-old Marion J. Anderson lives in a world of perpetual darkness.

Yet the blind Seattle girl's rich mind conceived a story a half-century and so glowingly put it down on paper it won first place in a nationwide contest.

The story, a fairy-tale entitled "How the Butterfly Got Its Name," was selected as best in a short story competition conducted by the Braille Searchlight Magazine, published in New York.

Get Their Ship Too

It has been said that the Canadian Mounties "always get their man." But from the seizure of the freighter Koenigsberg in the St. Lawrence some weeks ago it seems apparent that on occasion they get their ship as well, says the Toronto Star.

It has been estimated by geologists that during the Ice Age more than 1,000 feet of glacier ice covered what is now the town of Jasper, in Jasper National Park, Alberta.

Asparagus fern is not a fern, and alligator pears have no affinity with either pears or alligators.

BANFF CHAMP CROWNED

Ralph Whaley, tall, dark, handsome, shotmaker from Seattle's Broadview Club, receives the Edward Prince of Wales Trophy from Mrs. E. J. Ketcham at Banff's tenth annual golf week, August 21-26. Whaley played round golf all week to defeat Dr. Joe Rasmussen of New Rochelle, N.Y., 6 and 5, in the final for the tournament's major prize.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 17

MICAH: A MESSENGER OF SOCIAL SERVICE

Golden text: What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God? Micah 6:8.
Lesson: Micah 3:1-12; 6:6-8.
Devotional reading: Psalm 50:1-8, 14, 15.

Explanations and Comments

An Indictment of Unjust Rulers and False Prophets, Micah 3:1-12. The prophet questions: Is it not your duty, you princes, to know and practice justice? But you hate the good and love the evil. You are extortionists in your demands, are cruelly oppressing your people. The figure is that of a cannibal feast; the nobles are sitting around the cauldron in which food is being prepared, casting in the skin and the flesh of the people whom they were set to rule. In the sight of God ignorant barbarians who killed their foes in battle and in peace, or plied the sword to the so-called cultured classes who feasted on the blood of God's suffering judges, and represented Jehovah as inquiring the reason of his people's unfaithfulness, at the same time recalling what he had done for them in the past. Micah next represents the people as asking what Jehovah expects from them—what was acceptable worship: with what present shall they come and bow before him? The answer is that provision for this there were the sacrifices, sin-offerings, trespass-offerings, burnt-offerings, and there were priests appointed to approach God on behalf of his people and to make atonement for them. But those means do not satisfy the prophet. Although burnt-offerings of year-old calves were offered (Lev. 9:3), they would not suffice. Will Jehovah have regard to quantity as well as quality, will he be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? No amount of offerings is an adequate atonement for sin.

To do justly does not refer to legal justice nor to conventional justice, but to enlightened justice. The man in the Parable of the Laborers who was paid a penny for his day's work, though no fault of his own, had worked but one hour, as he gave to the owner who had worked through the burden and heat of the day, did not do justly according to legal or conventional justice, but he was pleased and rewarded by kindness, and justice.

Kindness must be reinforced by a humble walk with God. God requires nothing more and nothing less from those who would please him than that they should live their religion.

Travels In Luxury

Texas Broker's Pullman Bus Is Like First Class Hotel

When E. V. Christie, a broker of Houston, Texas, goes travelling, he wants all the comforts of home, and incidentally he has them, because he owns a $33,000 pullman bus that contains all the luxuries of a first class hotel.

When the streamlined, 33 feet long bus pulled up at the Table Rock House, in Queen Victoria Park, Niagara Falls, Ont., it immediately became the centre of attention. Many visitors flocked around the green and buff colored vehicle, completely forgetting about the Horseshoe Falls in the background.

Mr. Christie is entertaining a party of five on a tour across the United States, and this was his first stop over in Canada. He was on his way to the New York World's Fair.

At first sight, the interior of the bus looks like a railway pullman car of the latest design. First comes a kitchenette behind the driver's seat. In the kitchen is a small gas stove, electric refrigerator, and a hot water heating tank. Then comes the sitting room which can be changed into a bed room when needed. In the centre is a baggage room and a modern bath room, equipped with a shower.

The room at the rear of the vehicle is known as the lounge room. It is equipped with radio and modern air conditioning.

Passengers may sit in the lounge and read a secondary instrument panel which is a duplicate of the dashboard at the front of the bus. In this way passengers may know the speed of the bus without moving from their comfortable seats.

The huge bus will travel eighty miles an hour and gets about five and a half miles to the gallon of gas.

Mr. Christie, the owner, spends much of his time travelling about in his bus, which is also equipped with a private telephone and 1,000 feet of cable so that he may attach it to any telephone connection and keep constantly in touch with his office.

Folding like a suitcase, a portable party of five on a tour across the country for making photographic copies of tracings, drawings and manuscripts on special sensitized paper in a few minutes.

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA

presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

by DR. J. W. S. McCULLOUGH

INTERESTING THE PUBLIC IN HEALTH

The world's fair, the national exhibition, the county fair—all are media through which public education is carried on. In Canada, one of the best means adopted by the Health League of Canada to interest the public in health is to present an annual display at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

This year, through the generous co-operation of the Exhibition authorities, a more attractive display than ever before has been made possible for Canada's health education agency.

The exhibit has been designed to impress upon visitors various phases of health work. One large section is devoted to the need for the pasteurization of milk. Another section is devoted to the various activities of the Health League, attention being drawn in a spectacular manner to such topics as diphtheria and its prevention by toxoid, venereal diseases, and their control, artificial respiration and periodic health examinations to reduce the toll of cancer, heart disease and other causes of death.

An important point stressed by the Health League exhibit is the enormous cost of illness in Canada, half of which is preventable.

Editorial Note: Readers desiring the complete set of Dr. McCullough's cancer articles at once may secure same by writing to: The Health League of Canada, 14 Bond St., Toronto, Ont.

Not Only One Thing

But Many Which Younger Generation Have Never Seen

Ethel Barrymore approves of the little theatre movement because it gives an opportunity to young people who have never before seen a stage performance. This may surprise some of the older generation, or residents of larger cities which have from eight months to a year of the legitimate drama or musical reviews. Thousands of towns have had no professional stage performances since movies rose into the ascendency 25 years ago.

Yes, and there are thousands of members of the younger generation, in city and country alike, to whom an automobile is commonplace, but who have never ridden on a train. And think of the millions of youngsters who never saw mother or grandmother wear a gathered gown, apron—Christian Science Monitor.

Shoes Of Many Colors

Men And Women Will Have Wide Choice Next Spring

During a conference of designers, shoe makers and retailers and shoe retailers, 18 colors for women's shoes and 13 for men's shoes for Spring have been listed, says Marketing, Toronto. While the ladies will be distracted by their choice by such vivid shades as pink, blue, lime, turquoise, coral, yellow, red, violet and fuchsia, the men will find their way easily among varieties of brown with green the only disturbing note.

Managed At Last

Railroad Worker Visited Sick Friend In Unexpected Way

For 10 days Pat Shiner, 61, a railroad yard employee, reminded himself to call on N. A. Nelson, 67, a fellow worker who was in a Minneapolis hospital with injuries suffered when a switch engine struck him. Pat didn't get around to it. Then he stumbled and was hit by a tank car. When attendants put him to bed in a hospital the first person he saw, was Nelson—in the next bed.

Large Power Sled

Talking about sleds may be a little premature, but the Michler company of Fond du Lac, Wis., believes it has turned out the largest ever. It's 50 feet long and weighs more than 9,000 pounds. It will be used by an Alaskan mining company. Power will be supplied by a Diesel engine.

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES is thrown out

Deep in the night a 19-foot Peterboro canoe slipped from the shadow-packed shore below the darkened buildings of the Hudson's Bay post, rode the ebb tide down to the river mouth, and turned north on the coast.

As the northwest wind drove the ice-pack toward the bald buttresses of the Cape of the Four Winds and the canoe raced the broken-ice past the granite feet, the pursuing York boat appeared in the distance. It was a three days' race. But the frail canoe, driven by its desperate crew, reached White River, while high and dry on the bank, the York boat waited for the next tide to float it free.

Neil Campbell, the trader, was puzzled and worried by Alan's strange request which, Alan assured him could not be explained until later. Yet he staunchly agreed to corroborate Alan's story.

Delicious Recipe for Vanilla Cream Pudding

Note: 11 depends on the size of the pudding. Durham Corn Starch is sold in 1/2 lb. tins and 5 lb. tins. Use 1/2 tin for 11.

Combine 5 1/2 tablespoons Durham Corn Starch very thoroughly with 4 1/2 tablespoons granulated sugar and 3 1/2 teaspoon salt. Slowly stir in 3 cups hot milk; return to double boiler and stir and cook until mixture thickens. Cover and cook, with occasional stirring, until no raw flavor remains. Remove from heat and add 3/4 teaspoon vanilla. Cool slightly and turn into wet moulds or serving glasses. If chilled, this dessert may be unmoulded. Serve cold with fruit (fresh, stewed or canned), if desired; or accompany by Beehive Golden Corn Syrup or cream, plain or whipped. For coconut pudding, add shredded coconut to dessert and top with toasted almonds. See serving suggestions.

Use level standard measurements.

DURHAM STARCH

Saves You Money!

On up the coast, past the Little White and Richmond Gulf, went the canoe on its quest for dogs. At the Nastapokas, where the ice pack had brought in the walrus and polar bear from the north, Alan met the first of the Kogaluk Eskimos. There he traded his canoe load of goods and groceries for three yearling Ungava puppies, bred from a pair of superb huskies which had crossed from Hope's Advance on Ungava Bay. With their owners, he had kept his promise to John McCord. He now had a team of Ungavas for the coming winter.

With his two slate-gray and white puppies, Powder and Shot, and their seal-brown and white brother, called Rogue, Alan started back down the treacherous coast for Fort George.

The spring trade was in full swing when the Peterboro turned into the river mouth at Port George and rode the flood tide up to the Hudson's Bay settlement.

Soon Alan and Noel stood on the high shore, holding their nervous dogs by rawhide leashes to prevent a general fight with the post huskies. Noel suddenly pointed upstream to the settlement of the Northern Trading Company, beyond the Revillon Freres, where a number of York boats and a small schooner lay at anchor far in the distance.

"What's that on the water, up there? Dat's no boat," he said, his hand shading his squinting eyes.

"You're right!" cried Alan. "That's a seaplane—one of the Canadian Airways, I'll bet! The Northern Trading Company, you know, found a lot of iron and copper on the Nastapokas. Gabriel saw what they're after is gold, though."

At the Hudson's Bay Company, when Alan had locked Rouse and his priceless puppies in the small dog stockade behind his house, he was greeted by the sober faces of Duncan McNab and Andrew Christie, the factor.

"Well, young man," snapped Christie, "you seem to have made a fine mess of things!"

Alan stiffened as he met Christie's disgusted look, alert to avoid being caught off his guard by what was coming.

"Why, I was thinking," parried Alan, keeping his temper, "that Noel and I had made a pretty good trip up the coast."

"Pretty good trip," stormed the trader. "I'd say a pretty bad trip for you, Alan Cameron. Why, your father's turn over in his grave if he knew what you'd been up to."

Blood darkened Alan's wind-burned face but he forced a smile as he replied: "When you see the three pups, I got at the Nastapokas you'll agree."

"Your starting north the night after I told you the police had hired a York boat proves you wanted to see Neil before the police reached him."

Alan's face went white that moment. "Well, he told them where I got that money, didn't he?"

"Yes, but the police don't believe him."

"Do you?" demanded Cameron, a glitter in his gray eyes.

"I've got to believe Neil Campbell, I suppose, but he didn't help you, at all with McCord. The Sergeant's sure, now, you met this McCord and he's going back with you to the headwaters."

"You're a fool, Alan, to put yourself under suspicion of protecting a murderer!" added Duncan McNab. "The police can make it hot for you—take you down to the railroad and put you on trial."

Alan's good nature had returned. He smiled indulgently, displaying his strong white teeth. "It's 400 miles to the headwaters. Noel and I'll be glad to show the police the way, if that's all they want. Won't we, Noel?"

For their meeting, anybody up there last winter—that's nonsense!" "Well, I wouldn't be in your shoes for a good deal!" snapped Christie. "By the by," he continued, after a period of silence, "a Canadian Airways plane came in a few days ago bringing the mail from Moose, and there's a passenger who is waiting to see you."

"A passenger—to see me?" Alan stared at the speaker. "Aye, and she's kicked up more rumpus in old Fort George than I've seen since the measles killed half our people."

"She?" what could a woman from the "outside" want with Alan Cameron? he wondered.

"Yes, a woman. She's thick as peas with the police. Has something to do with their trip here, I take it. But she won't talk to the other women about it. She's holding the plane until she sees you."

On his way to Gabriel Dessane's house, Alan stopped to see his friend Pierre and learn if the Dessanes were still at supper. Opening the door of the trade-room, to his surprise he saw Arsene Rivard in close conversation with a woman whose Norfolk jacket, short skirt and high laced boots marked her as a stranger at Fort George. As he entered he caught her remark:

"He must have met—"

"Hello, Rivard!" said Alan, enjoying the embarrassment of the two.

"Pierre's over at his house, I suppose?"

"He must have met—"

"Hello, Rivard!" said Alan, enjoying the embarrassment of the two.

"Pierre's over at his house, I suppose?"

"Pierre's over at his house, I suppose?"

"Hello, Rivard!" said Alan, enjoying the embarrassment of the two.

"Pierre's over at his house, I suppose?"

"He must have met—"

"Hello, Rivard!" said Alan, enjoying the embarrassment of the two.

"Pierre's over at his house, I suppose?"

"Why, 'old, Cameron!" The tone of the clerk was very cordial as he left the woman, who leaned gracefully against the trade-counter, calmly inspecting the handsome young voyageur, from his moccasins to the deep-set twinkling gray eyes.

"Mrs. Hanbury, I would make you acquainted with Alan Cameron," said the clerk turning to the woman.

So this is the woman who has upset Fort George, he thought. She seemed hardly more than 35, with a tall, graceful figure set off by the whipcord suit. Her face, framed by wavy brown hair, was the face of a girl, except for the hazel eyes, long lashed and large. The eyes were unmistakably those of a woman who had seen much.

"May I speak to Mr. Cameron?" she asked of Rivard.

"Certainly, Madame," replied the clerk with an insinuating smile as he left the trade-room.

Mrs. Hanbury lost no time in coming to the point.

"Eleven, Cameron, are you out of your mind?"

Alan laughed. Folding his muscular arms across his chest he calmly met the handsome eyes that searched his.

"It may be, I never had much mind," he answered, dryly.

"You're playing a dangerous game," she became suddenly dramatic, "when you start to work against the Provincial Police."

He had once read of a woman detective in a book in the post library. Could this woman be a government detective?

"How have I worked against the police," he asked, disarmingly, "by telling the truth?"

She burst into a paroxysm of laughter that did not fail to display the whiteness and regularity of her teeth. Drying her eyes with a handkerchief that filled the air with a subtle perfume, she said, standing very close to the uncomfortable Alan: "Why, you poor boy, do you suppose they don't know you're lying?"

"Excuse me, Mrs. Hanbury, I don't know who you are," he said, the blood darkening his bronzed face. "What right have you to ask me questions?"

She opened her large eyes with their long-lashed lids in amazement. "They didn't tell you—at the Hudson's Bay?"

"Not a word—except that you were here and wanted to see me."

"That's strange. I'm connected with the government, you know—special agent. I flew to Moose on another matter and wanted to have a look at the East Coast. Knowing Sergeant McQueen and Corporal Slade, of course I was interested in their search for this McCord whom you met in the 'McCord last winter.'"

"I did not meet McCord last winter!" The cold glitter in the gray eyes had a decided effect on Mrs. Hanbury's manner. She suddenly dropped her air of easy confidence.

"When they get John McCord," she went on, dramatically, ignoring the fact that she was talking to a woman who would be tried for aiding an escaped murderer? Now, I promise you that if you'll tell me where you met this man and the girl—what you know about them, I'll square this whole thing with the police." Again she approached too closely for Alan's comfort as her black-lashed hazel eyes narrowed. "It's going to go hard for you, if you don't, for McQueen will take you down to the Deputy Commissioner at the railroad for questioning."

The conversation was interrupted by the return of Gabriel Dessane from his supper. Harassed by the certainty of being compelled to accompany the police to the headwaters, by doubt and misgivings which the mysterious Mrs. Hanbury had aroused, Alan went over to the factor's house. Received coldly by Madame Dessane, he found Berthe waiting.

"You have found her very agreeable, to talk so long in the traderoom?" she asked, giving him a lifeless hand.

"Aren't you then? So you think that woman—"

"I don't know what to think. Good-night, Alan!" And she left the room.

Treasure Tomb.

Discovery Of Rare Importance Is Made in England

The full story of what is now shown to be the greatest archaeological discovery of recent times has been revealed in a typewritten statement issued in the peaceful Suffolk town of Woodbridge.

It describes in detail the treasures—objects of gold and silver, many studded with diamonds and other precious stones—found in the 1,400-year-old royal "funeral-ship" buried on a hilltop at Sutton Hoo, near Woodbridge.

The statement is drawn up by C. W. Phillips, a Fellow of Belvoir College, Cambridge, who has been superintending the excavations for the Office of Works in London.

He emphasizes that the highest importance is attached to the discovery because "this is the first time any ship burial, found in other Britain of Scandinavia, had not been plundered.

These riches of Anglo-Saxon England uncovered by the excavators include armor, chain mail, jewels and clothing.

They mark a discovery far more important than the most sanguine hopes of the archaeologists and scientists who have been eagerly awaiting news of the finds, it is stated.

They have brought across the centuries a wealth of well-preserved articles of beauty and domestic use such as probably has been uncovered only by the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen in Egypt.

They almost certainly belonged to a member of a ruling family in the little known days of Anglo-Saxon England. It is possible that this was the grave of King Raedwald, nicknamed "Raedwald the Cautious" because he is believed to have followed Christianity and Paganism at the same time.

A name scratched in Runic letters on the back of one of the golden objects is to be the subject of the most searching examination.

The solid gold ornaments of the dead man's belt are so heavy that they could have been made only for a man of great physical strength, while a lovely silver salver three feet across is such that only a strong man could have carried it.

Armour placed in the tomb for the dead man's journey over the Sea of the Dead is elaborate and ornate. There is a large iron sword with a pommel and handgrip studded with gold and gems. Then there are the remains of an iron helmet with a bronze faceplate cast to represent a nose, mouth and moustache. This also was decorated with thin gold and silver. The fall of the burial chamber unfortunately shattered the sword and helmet.

Also found in the tomb were the remains of elaborately decorated shields and an iron axe with a long handle and heavily decorated suit of chain-mail. There were also bunches of spears of various types.

But at the spot where the body apparently lay were found the great treasures of the ancient jeweller's art, including the massive gold buckle, armlets of solid gold, gold ingots and ancient coins.

A Real Difference

Between What You Have And What You Are Worth

The Edinburgh Dispatch says W. Dalchuck, M.P. for West Fife, caused laughter in the British House of Commons by referring to an occasion when Mr. G. B. Shaw had taken the oath in order to testify to the qualifications for standing bail.

"The Magistrate," he stated, "said to Mr. Shaw, 'Are you worth £200?' Mr. Shaw coughed his head a little to the side and said, 'Well, I won't say that, but I have got £200.'"

Then, as is the custom in Japan, the tail is wrapped up and held together by rubber bands, so that the bird can eat and play to its heart's content with the hen, which is a very homely-looking bird, very different from its mate—only natural, of course.
